Live Courses

Live Courses of Serbian language are held at the University of Belgrade, Faculty of Philology. They are held in the course of one academic year, two semesters (winter and summer semester). The courses are held daily, comprising three hours of class work per day, five workdays per week. We offer Beginners', Intermediate and Advanced Courses.

The Beginners' Course (levels A1 and A2) is intended for participants who have no knowledge of Serbian language whatsoever. During the course, participants will master basic grammar and vocabulary necessary for everyday communication, reading, and comprehension of simple texts. They will also be taught both Serbian alphabets (Cyrillic and Latin). About 500 hours of class work.

The Intermediate Course (levels B1 and B2) is intended for those participants who already have the basic knowledge of the Serbian language necessary for a higher level of everyday communication. During the course, they will improve their knowledge of Serbian at the grammatical, lexical, and socio-cultural level. About 400 hours of class work.

The Advanced Course (levels C1 and C2) is intended for those who do speak and write Serbian, but need to be introduced to more demanding and in-detail level of grammar, vocabulary and socio-cultural aspects of the language (e.g. because of their professional requirements). About 300 hours of class work.
